Just imagine for a second if this man of great vision, mentality sharp and astute, morally incorruptible and a great patriot took over from where Kuffour left Ghana.

Stop! halt!! Mr journalist!!! It was Media encounter with the President, and you should have been there as the 4 estate of government to ask relevant questions.
So please its not the president telling us what he want to, and he's not addressing the nation in Parliament.

I wonder what kind of training these journalists receive and how the Ghana Media Commission manage the knowledge and skills of the Ghanaian Journalists. In fact the raw nature of their questions posed to the President reveals a gross lack of in depth understanding of the social interactions in the country.

When is Ghana going to allow autonomy to the regions to elect their own Regional commissioners and allowed to seek investments to develop those regions

People in the Ghana media talk too much!! Talk is cheap and it is always easy to criticise with the benefit of hindsight. The president could have spoken for 10 hours and some may have still doubted that he had thoroughly answered all of the questions the media deemed to be important. What I saw was a president doing his best to keep the people who voted him and his government informed of happenings in his administration. His answers were quite apt and appropriate in my view. What the media needs to do is to investigate the answers given to ascertain that they are factually correct and not worry over the format of the event.

Now the NDC / it's propaganda machines are complaining bitterly about time was too short. You guys could not ask basic simple questions and were just fumbling with words. None of your so called questions were intelligently asked. The president knows you guys cannot floor him thereby didn't waste his precious time. I watched it and can deduced that all questions to him were hollow and shallow minded. The next day you see them complaining about the time which was laughable. You guys don't do research but just follows one has said and see all complaining on the same. You guys are a waste of time. Whining journalists Association of Ghana.

Mr President thanks for your hard work for your nation. they should known things can't be like magic. if they had any complaints about hardship and struggling. they should face NDC government for corruption. NDC people saying hardship and suffering and they are the source of it all. No shame party NDC .and they keep on mourning about it. only thing NDC government did was stealing. NDC government need to bring the nation's money back. than they can invest that money in the system.

U are confused of believing on this calling himself a president

  REPLY

Akos F 4 days ago

+Vid Thompson I am not confused. why ?he need to call himself as a president whilst people sacrifice to help and build. and others destroying and stealing from their own people. and mourning about hardship and suffering. who cause it. those genuine citizen's they will know the difference. because it can't be a magic.

Why are the privileged educated Ghanaians criticizing the Free SHS policy? After all the policy targets the underprivileged but cannot exclude the child of the tax payer (business people, workers and civil sector). However, the weaknesses and threats in the policy rather provide opportunities and strengths to the private educationists or schools to emphasize on GCSE and
